Testosterone Propionate is a short acting oil-based injectable formulation of testosterone. Testosterone inhibits gonadotropin secretion from the pituitary gland and ablates estrogen production in the ovaries, thereby decreasing endogenous estrogen levels. In addition, this agent promotes the maintenance of male sex characteristics and is indicated for testosterone replacement in hypogonadal. Testosterone Propionate, commonly referred to as "Test Prop" to those in the fitness industry, is one of the esterified variants of Testosterone. Information about Test Prop was first released way back in 1935 as a result of different ways to figure out the best possible way to maximize the use of Testosterone itself.

Testosterone Propionate is a pure testosterone hormone. Although synthetic it is a perfect replica of the primary naturally produced male androgen testosterone. By design, the hormone is attached to the Propionate (propionic acid) ester, a small/short ester that enables the hormone's release time to be controlled.

Testosterone Propionate, unlike Sustanon 250 or Testosterone Enanthate, has a brief exposure in the body, so it is very popular in the pre-competition period when the athlete is not interested in unnecessary water retention in the body. It has an almost immediate effect after use and its effects last for 2 to 3 days. The goals of TRT are to restore serum testosterone levels to within the mid-normal physiological range associated with the patient's age group, generally considered to be between 400 and 700 ng/dL, and to improve symptoms in hypogonadal men (2,3).
