When you eat garlic and chile, you benefit from defense mechanisms these plants evolved to bacterial and fungal attacks (allicin in garlic and capsaicin in chiles). Capsaicin, which makes chiles spicy, is a rockstar but here I want to talk about allicin, which is created in response to tissue damage in garlic. Besides putting the hurt on harmful bacteria and fungi like evolution intended, allicin has been linked to increased function of the immune system, AS WELL AS reducing inflammation and risk of cancer and cardiovascular disease.
