DECODING Your NHP Label

Lets face it, the fine print can be difficult to decode.
Here is the essential information to look for on your natural health products (NHPs) and what it all means.

- 1 This isn't just a marketing tool – it's also essential for tracking who made the product.
- 2 Liquids, gel capsules, chewables or tablets: find a dosage form that fits your needs.
- 3 This "health claim" communicates its purpose.
- 4 Each product is formulated to contain a specific amount of medicinal ingredient(s).
- 5 Is it a root? A leaf? An extract? Canada has strict rules about ingredient quality.
- 6 These include colours, binders or flavours.
- 7 How long should you take a product? Sometimes, NHPs need weeks-to-months to show the greatest benefit.
- 8 Some NHPs interact with medications or might not be suitable for all.
- 9 The eight-digit "Natural Product Number" (NPN) means that the product is licensed by Health Canada, and has been shown to be safe, effective and of a high quality.
- 10 Stay fresh. Lot number and expiry are used for tracing and quality assurance.

Remember:

NPN: Check the label for an eight-digit Natural Product Number. It tells you that the product has been reviewed by Health Canada to be safe, effective and of a high quality.

NPN 12345678

Enter your NPN into the Health Canada Licensed NHP Database for more information.

Speak with your healthcare practitioner about any NHP you are using, to see which is right for you.
