Losing weight, toning up, building muscle are all things we do physically. We physically change how many calories we consume, how many calories we burn and how frequently we exercise. But the most important part of your fitness journey is how you change your mindset. If you don't change the way you think about food and exercise then you will find it very difficult to change your approach to them. Remember this isn't a temporary thing, setting yourself these goals is a lifestyle change, if your aiming to maintain them. You need your mind to be in the correct place to achieve results. If the odd day your minds not in it, rest, go for a walk, have a small treat, but make sure you get back in that mindset the next day. Your mindset can change everything!! 1350.
