It's been a busy week working 9-10 hrs. How do you guys like the pink belt? Does it suit me lol. Had to borrow one on Wednesday cuz waist is so small now I couldn't latch on my prong belt.
Leg day today which means treat day! Linden had a bday party to go today. With her peanut/treenut allergy we usually bring a cupcake for her so that she doesn't miss out and we don't have to worry KC the cake is safe.

Physical strength is something I have always loved working on, however mental strength for me has always been a struggle. Having confidence in myself is a major weak point. This week has really been testing me. With only four weeks left until my first powerlifting meet my nerves have kicked in and I have really been beating myself up. I have gave myself every excuse of why I will fail and I have done nothing but think negatively. I even broke down in tears in the gym parking lot before benching today because I didn't feel good enough about where I am. Do any of you struggle with this like I do? If you do... Any tips for bringing yourself out of this funk And I did go in and get my bench work in. (Scroll through if you want to see)
