The dead hang is a good exercise to practice if you're training to do pullups from an overhead bar or just want to improve your upper body strength. Dead hangs also help stretch out and decompress the spine. Make sure you're doing dead hangs from a secure bar. Work your way up in duration to prevent injury.

This 13 months has taught me that if you voluntarily take on challenges and endure healthy hardships it will maximally turn on your dormant genes and potential and bring out the unlocked ancestral potential and millennia old knowledge that is locked within your genetic code. All we are is the composite of all the ancestral beings that came before us and their experiences that changed their genetic codes. Do your part in ensuring that what you encode into your genes benefits the future.
