Pulmonary and Critical Care and I'm here to stay. Intensive care can be mentally, emotionally, and physically challenging. From doing emergent intubations, chest tubes, and and doing CPR, to explaining to a family member why their loved one has died. This job can also be rewarding. You'll have the chance to be directly involved with the recovery of critically ill patients. You'll have a sense of purpose as you're an important part of the team making critical decisions to save a person's life. This is a specialized field where you gain a set of skills that is in demand. Also, the opportunities for personal and professional growth is limitless. hop over to this site
