Title : Auto blue cheese Comment : I've had 1 that didn't pop & the other one popped out it in soil and nothing as yet as it's only been 1day in the soil By W. P. on 23/Nov/2020 : Blue Cheese Auto is a feminized autoflowering version of the classic Blue Cheese that was crossed with a ruderalis to get this productive and fast flowering variation. The plant is easy to grow, and it will flourish in most environments. The flowering period takes 11 weeks from shoots, and the harvest brings 500 gr/m2 of fragrant buds. #instaphoto #photooftheday #landscapeloversofinstagram #weed #cannabis

Blue Cheese Auto has a sweet fruity flavor that is followed by the classic cheese flavor that makes it so distinct. The flowers cure well and results in a relatively smooth smoke. Grow Setup. We grew in a 4x4 tent with 4 LED lights: one 1200W light, one 800W light, and 2 400W COB lights. The temp was between 60 and 70 degrees throughout the grow. Blue Cheese Autoflowering: This Cheesy And Fruity Strain Was Born Ready. Don't worry, Blue Cheese Autoflowering doesn't resemble moldy cheese, unless you're a blue cheese connoisseur, in which case, we're sorry to disappoint. Blue Cheese Autoflowering derives from the hybridization of two autos, Cheese Auto and Blueberry Auto.

Her aroma is what separates her from the rest as we have brought together the deep, fruity, cherry, blueberry and the creamy, pungent dank from the Cheese. Alrighty done the hard flush, transplanted, reamended. LETS grow! Have to let this recoup from all that stress. After that she gonna get a nice trim to get that skirt flowing before I flip to flower.
