WHAT IS CBN? // // // //

Cannabinol (CBN) is a mildly-psychoactive cannabinoid found in trace amounts in cannabis.

HOW DOES CBN INTERACT WITH THE ENDOCANNABINOID SYSTEM?

CBN preferentially binds to the endocannabinoid system's CB2 receptors as a partial agonist but exhibits very weak binding affinity to the CB1 receptors.

CBN is often found in aging cannabis, as it is the result of an oxidative process where THCA is exposed to heat and oxygen over time, breaking down to CBNA.

CBN'S POSITIVE EFFECTS ON THE BODY (according to US Patent 507):

- Appetite Stimulant
- Decreases Intra-Ocular Pressure
- Analgesic
- Anti-Inflammatory
- Antibacterial

"Many of the relaxing and soothing effects that are associated with cannabis consumption are actually a result of CBN levels."
