Improvement of appearance

Patients often seek dental treatment because they are dissatisfied with their appearance.

However, it is difficult to assess dental esthetics objectively.

Improvement of appearance

If the existing appearance is far outside socially accepted values, the indications of corrective procedures should be brought to the patient's attention.

Available materials and techniques

- Restorative materials have limitations
- Metal (Color, galvanism, gold-expensive)
- Ceramic (Glass like, fracture, hard to repair)
- Composite (Color change, shrinkage)
- Amalgam (Color, mechanical retention, mercury)

Selection according to indication

Plastic materials

Plastic materials (e.g. silver amalgam or composite resin) are the most commonly used dental restoratives.

They allow simple and conservative restoration of damaged teeth.

However, their mechanical properties are inferior to those of cast metal or metal ceramic restorations.
