Julia Slater, MD, UC Health plastic and reconstructive surgeon and assistant professor in the Department of Surgery at the UC College of Medicine, says, ♦ If you come across someone with a burn from an electrical injury, it is very important that you stop and make sure the scene is safe before you provide help. Always look for active power lines or turn off the electric supply to outlets and cords before approaching. First-aid should be administered as you should for any trauma patient, while being careful not to move them unless necessary, checking to see if they are breathing normally and have a heartbeat. ♦ more helpful hints
