What we should be teaching boys is that to 'be a man' of substance they need to be adaptable to change, willing to share emotions, cry, show weakness and to communicate with other guys about tough conversational topics. We shouldn't be ashamed of being men but the way we've been taught should show us that maybe the old way, isn't the right way.

We don't need to be socially
distant, but we do need to be physically
distant!
