Warnings

3:46 PM NST Wednesday 14 November 2018

Storm surge warning in effect for:

- Bay of Exploits

High Storm Surge levels and very large waves are expected to impact the coast.

Higher than normal water levels due to storm surge combined with large waves and pounding surf are expected from White Bay to Cape Race. Conditions will be at their worst near high tide on Thursday morning. Coastal flooding and damage to sea side infrastructure is possible, especially along northwest facing coastlines.

Conditions will begin to gradually subside Thursday afternoon and into Thursday evening.

High waves combined with the surge may cause damage along the coast. People close to the shoreline should stay on the lookout for worsening conditions.

Storm surge warnings are issued when water levels pose a threat to coastal regions.

Please continue to monitor alerts and forecasts issued by Environment Canada. To report severe weather, send an email to NLstorm@canada.ca or tweet reports using #NLwx.

3:44 PM NST Wednesday 14 November 2018

Wind warning in effect for:

- Bay of Exploits

Dangerous wind gusts causing widespread damage are expected or occurring.

Extremely Strong Winds for tonight and Thursday.

Strong westerly winds gusting to 130 km/h this evening will shift to more northwesterly tonight with gusts to 150 km/h possible, especially along exposed coastal locations. These extreme winds will persist through Thursday morning before gradually diminishing Thursday afternoon and evening.

Buildings under construction risk extreme damage. High winds may cause numerous downed trees and damage may occur from blowing debris.
