When injecting the user should not exceed 50 mg to the site of injection. There are many steroids with which this is perfectly fine to do, but with Winstrol this will hurt like hell because 50 mg hurts enough. It is worth noting that Winstrol requires gradual adaptation. The steroid is administered daily due to short half-life and working so fast. Monday feels Leg and glute DOMS are real! I've found that my glute DOMs (delayed onset muscle soreness) have hugely increased the stronger the muscle has become...I never 'felt' the muscle soreness as much until my glutes got stronger. A lot of us will attach ourselves to that burning, sore feeling when training them or be disappointed if we don't get it the next day, but don't be...if your training technique is correct then over time as your glutes become stronger and bigger you'll probably feel them a lot more but again....this should not be your focus! Progression within your lifts and a calorie surplus and recovery are all the key

Another important note often misunderstood about Winstrol forms is the C17-aa nature. Both oral and injectable Stanozolol are C17-aa anabolic steroids. Most oral steroids are C17-aa and while injectable steroids rarely are injectable Stanozolol is one of the exceptions. The injectable form is also commonly referred to as Winstrol Depot.
