Understanding how to pick the right exercises to get the most out of an agonist superset is crucial for getting the most out of the muscle. The set up on this one was finding exercises that match resistance profiles with strength curves as much as possible but have the start positions be different. With leg extensions they are going to start in the lengthen position and with the hack squat variation they will start in the shorten position for the quads which are the target muscles. There are other ways to set this up with an exercise that challenges the strongest position first so it's fatigued and then moving to an exercise that challenges the weakest position. Another way is to challenge where the torque is being placed to challenge the same muscles just from different positions like a back ext with a leg curl. So many ways to set this up just don't use exercises that are almost identical in all aspects of the movement. @teamphoenixperformance @subjectzero_supps 750

6 Take Deep Breaths: is your posture bad? Is your bra too tight? Are you unknowingly hyperventilating? Shallow breaths keep you in a fight or flight nervous system response. Make it a habit to take deep belly breaths throughout the day.
